You cannot find what you are not looking for.

But some things come looking for you.